AmCham Statement for Visitors and Guests Coming to Georgia

The American Chamber of Commerce in Georgia, wants to confirm that Georgia remains open and eager to welcome tourists and business guests from around the world. While some Georgian citizens continue to exercise their right to peacefully demonstrate outside of the Parliament, this causes no disruption or safety concerns that a visitor need worry about.

For many years, Georgia has been an incredibly safe country for foreigners and guests, whether one stays in Tbilisi, travels to the coast or hikes and tours in the country’s many beautiful destinations. This continues to be true today.

Moreover, along with high levels of safety and hospitality, in recent years the country has seen dramatic improvements in its national tourism infrastructure with more and better hotels, transportation routes and destinations across the country. So, come and visit Georgia, the birthplace of wine and one of the most hospitable places in the world. There has never been a better time to come!

With best wishes

R. Michael Cowgill
President
American Chamber of Commerce in Georgia